

Abstract

A device for biopsy of body tissue. The device is driven by liquid CO₂, and is provided with a control system to control various components to effectuate rotating core biopsies.